Directions:

Print out game boards on card stock for best results.

Additional Materials needed: 3 dice, 10 markers for each player.

For the addition bump game, students roll 3 dice and add the numbers together. They place their marker on that sum. Another student can bump them off if they get the same sum. However, if a student rolls that sum twice they can lock it with two of their markers. First player to use all 10 markers is the winner.

For the subtraction game, they add the three numbers together and then subtract that number from 20. They place their marker on the answer. Again someone can bump them off the board if they get the same answer.

For the multiplication game, students roll 2 dice and multiply the numbers together. The student then places a cube or counter on that number. If another player's cube or counter is on that number, BUMP it off.

The student with all their markers on the board is the winner.
